A Word from the Directors...

We believe strongly in the power of storytelling. We strive to give the students and audiences of PV Theatre a varied experience of stories told onstage, in terms of style and content and thematic substance. But every story we've brought to life here over the past 11 years has had one thing in common – they've all been someone else's. With Brainstorm, for the first time, the students of PV Theatre are telling their own stories.

The structure of the play and its scientific content was provided by Company Three, the British community theatre for young people who created the first version of it. The published script, based on the 2015 performances of Brainstorm at Park Theatre and the National Theatre in London, gave us the framework upon which to build our version. All the personal content comes from our PV students and the work they have been doing since early September.

Devised theatre – theatre created by the company performing it – is a new genre for us here. Instead of the rehearsal process being focused on memorizing lines and staging, the company spends a great deal of time generating content. We have played games, done writing exercises, improvised, made and shared videos, scripted and workshopped scenes, and talked with each other. A lot. As is usually the case in a devising process, all the work was centered around a central concept. In this case, that concept is what recent advances in brain science have revealed about the unique nature of the teenage mind.

It is often said, among proponents of educational theatre, that the process of creating a devised piece is as valuable, if not moreso than, the final product. At the recommendation of the original creators, we set three rules for our work: be kind, be brave, be yourself. We are so grateful for the honest, open participation of each of the 41 actors in this show, who have opened a window into their hearts, minds, and lives to each other in this process. In marrying the science and their stories throughout their process, they've gained an enriched understanding of themselves and each other.

The importance of the product, though, can't be overlooked. They have done all this work, and are sharing their stories, for you. Their audience. They have things to show you and stories to tell you. Their stories. As educators, we have noticed a shift in how we view and understand our students because of this show. We wish the same for you. One of the great gifts theatre can give to the world is increased understanding of one another, and our world could sure use that right now.

The extracurricular theatre program of Pascack Valley High School is committed to mounting high-quality productions that provide a rich educational and theatrical experience for its participants and audiences. We will continually strive to present work of artistic and thematic significance to our community, in the hopes that students, teachers, and spectators alike will be moved by our work to feel deeply and think deeply.

The Playwright

Company Three (Playwright) creates a space in which young people can talk to adults, and in which adults will really listen. Originally formed as Islington Community Theatre in 2008, we are a company of 75 young people aged 11-19. They make theatre through long-term, intensive collaboration between their members and professional theatre-makers. They're based in Islington, North London, one of the most diverse and unequal boroughs in the UK. Company Three plays are part of an ongoing conversation about what it means to be a teenager. They train our members as theatre-makers, helping them to understand themselves and the world around them, and to create work that allows them to express who they are. They make their plays through a process of research and development, early-stage scratch (experimental performances) and professional productions. Company Three work has been seen at the National Theatre, at the Royal Albert Hall, on Channel 4 and the BBC.

The Production Team

Curtis Shields (Lighting Designer) is a New York City based lighting designer for theatre, dance, and opera. Broadway: The Spongebob Musical (Assistant to LD). Additional Credits: West Side Story, Carrie, Elton John and Tim Rice's AIDA, Triumph of Love, Den of Thieves, The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas (Assoc.), The Joci Awards, and numerous dance shows. PV: Urinetown, Anything Goes, Don't Drink The Water, Cabaret, The Laramie Project and Ten Years Later. A proud PV Theatre alumni, Curtis is happy to be back in the space where he found his love for theatrical design. He is a graduate of Montclair State University where he received a BFA in Lighting Design. IG: @curtisshieldsdesign

Adam Farnan (Associate Technical Director) is a carpenter who has worked with PV Theatre since 2010. He started off as a student on the crew team his sophomore year of high school, and became master carpenter his senior year. After graduation, he was asked to work with the crew as the Assistant Technical Director. In addition to his work at Pascack Valley, Adam also designs and constructs scenery for Bergen Community College, and other HS and community theatres.

Music by Mary Rodgers • Lyrics by Marshall Barer
Book by Jay Thompson, Dean Fuller and Marshall Barer

Thursday, March 14 at 7pm

Friday, March 15 at 7pm

Saturday, March 16 at 1pm & 7pm

A lonely prince, his doting mother, and his tireless search for a genuine princess to make his life and kingdom complete is a picture-perfect romantic fairy tale. But the story of “The Princess and the Pea” isn’t quite so pretty as we’ve been led to believe! Sidesplitting comedy and clowning, underhanded scheming and sneaking, raucous dance and enchanting song are all delivered by a charming cast of colorful characters who show how it really happened.
